

Photo provided by the Road Commission of Kalamazoo.

Report: Michigan $3.9 billion in the hole annually for road work funding

By Michael Arney
July 24, 2024

LANSING, MI (WKZO AM/FM) – A new report says Michigan still has a massive gap in road maintenance funding.

A national transportation nonprofit, TRIP, released the Keeping Michigan Mobile report and says inflation is also an issue.

TRIP director of policy and research Rocky Moretti says there was 43% inflation for highway construction and repairs in 2022 and 2023.

21% of major roads in the state are in poor condition, as are 6% of bridges.

Transportation officials are hoping lawmakers find long-term funding solutions.