

Study confirms extent of bad roads in Oklahoma

April 23, 2025

A new report informs motorists in Oklahoma what they probably already knew—that about half of the roads in the state are in bad shape.

TRIP , a national transportation research nonprofit issued its annual update on the conditions of roads and highways across the nation and concluded 48% of Oklahoma's roads are not in good shape. As a result, it costs drivers about $2,600 a year.
